

CAREER PLANNING ASSESSMENTS

Listed below are several career planning assessment tools that you can use online. Some of them may need someone knowledgeable of the assessment to help interpret the results. These assessments help to determine interests, personality, and other important elements that an individual needs to consider when making a career decision.

Kingdomality – A fun assessment that relates your personality and interests to the world of King Arthur.

Career Key - A brief inventory that asks about an individual's temperament, abilities, working conditions, education, interests, and the importance of salary requirements and employment outlook. The results include a list of occupations that matches the answers given and a complete narrative description of each occupation. www.careerkey.org/

Career Toolbox - This site offers two tests to assist with career exploration. The 60 item sample work interest quiz is designed to acquaint the user with a national test called the Interest-Finder which is available with the Armed Services Vocational Aptitude Battery (ASVAB) Career Exploration Program. Answers are analyzed and fit into two of the six RIASEC (Realistic, Investigative, Artistic, Social, Enterprising, or Conventional) work types. Information on a military occupation counterpart is also available within the selected environment. The second test offered is the Personality Test which is based on the Myers-Briggs Typology.
